DR. AND MRS. Paul Patchen of Chicago are greeted by Father John Lefko as they tour the college's library and campus.

Chicago physician aids library

A couple newspaper columns, a Wall Street Journal advertisement, and a former faculty member brought Dr. and Mrs. Paul Patchen and a truck load of books to Saint Joseph's College Calumet Campus.

They came out of Chicago laden with some 500 books and periodicals from Dr. Patchen's private library and, according to Librarian John Iglar, they keep coming back . . . with more books.

Valued at over $3,000, the books and periodicals are "excellent" additions to the college's growing 55,000 volume library, already considered the best college library in Lake County.

Dr. Patchen remembered the Wall Street Journal ad about a "fat little two fisted priest" and on one Sunday afternoon he and Mrs. Patchen took a sneak prevue of the "store front campus". That he was impressed was evidenced the next day when he called to talk to that "little fat priest", got Mr. Iglar instead, and began negotiating what has been the college's biggest book gift.

The Patchens have been back . . . several times. Usually they have come laden with more books, but on occasion it has been to participate in college functions, like the Executive Luncheon and Black Tie Theatre Party.

A physician and surgeon, Dr. Patchen retired in 1969 from general practice. Both he and Mrs. Patchen have been interested in ancient history and archeology and similarly they have a passion for travel. The trip from their home at 8011 Chappel Ave., Chicago, to the Calumet Campus is one they have taken frequently of late.
